- TOYS THAT CONTAIN NEAR SMALL PARTS -

These products contain toy parts that almost fit in the choke test tube or spherical objects that fail the small ball test. Although these toys do not violate the letter of the law, these parts could block a child's airway given their shape and size. Children have died on similarly-sized toys that pass the choke tube test.

- OVER-LABELED TOYS -

Some manufacturers are placing choking hazard warnings on products that do not contain small parts. This dilutes the meaning of the warning for parents. These are just two examples of clearly over-labeled toys.

Category: Over-labeled toys

Toy Name: Weapon Army of Zin Silent Arsenal Weapon Set

Manufacturer: Axiom International

Problem: Labeled with choke hazard warning, but toy does not have any small parts. Over-labeling dilutes the effectiveness of the warning.

- Magnetic Toys -

Standards

Currently, no labeling or performance standards govern magnetic toys. ASTM is considering but has not yet finalized draft standards as of November 2006.

Examples of Magnetic Toys

Category: Magnetic toys

Toy Name: Magnetix (assorted)

Manufacturer: MEGA Brands

Item Number: Assorted

Problem: In March 2006, CPSC and MEGA Brands announced a “replacement program” for almost four million Magnetix Magnetic Building Sets, revealing that tiny magnets inside the plastic building pieces and rods can fall out. If a child swallows more than one magnet, the magnets can attract to each other and cause intestinal perforation or blockage. MEGA Brands has re-designed its product, but old stock may remain on store shelves and in consumers’ homes.

Category: Magnetic Toys

Toy Name: Claire’s Magnetic Earrings

Manufacturer: CBI Distributing

Item Number: 66058-9 (and other assorted)

Problem: If a child swallows more than one magnet, the magnets can attract to each other and cause intestinal perforation or blockage. Magnetic jewelry left in place for too long can damage surrounding tissue by obstructing blood flow.

- Excessively Loud Toys -

Standards

In November 2003, ASTM finalized acoustics standards for toys that include the following:

- Hand-held, table-top, floor, and crib toys: Toys in this classification should not produce continuous sound that exceeds 90 dB when measured from 25 centimeters (cm).
- Close-to-the-ear toys: Toys in this classification should not produce continuous sound that exceeds 70 dB when measured from 25 cm.
- All toys with impact-type impulsive sounds: Toys should not produce an impact-type peak sound in excess of 120 dB when measured from 25 cm. This requirement also applies to all recorded impulsive sounds, such as those produced by video games, regardless of what was recorded (explosion or impact).
- All toys with explosive-type impulsive sounds except percussion caps: Toys should not produce an explosive-type peak sound in excess of 138 dB when measured from 25 cm.

- Potentially Toxic Toys -

Standards

- Toys or materials used in toys must conform to the Federal Hazardous Substances Act.
- If metal jewelry is intended for use by children and toxic lead content is accessible by a child, then it constitutes a banned hazardous substance under the law.
 - Play cosmetics—cosmetics intended for children under 14—must conform to the requirements of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetics Act.
 - CPSC has issued a guidance to manufacturers, retailers, and distributors about children's products containing liquid chemicals. This guidance states that manufacturers should eliminate the use of the following chemicals in children's products: mercury, ethylene glycol, diethylene glycol, methanol, methylene chloride, petroleum distillates, toluene, xylene, and related chemicals.

- Projectiles -

Standards

ASTM established voluntary standards governing projectile toys, which are toys that children can launch into free flight. The standards state:

- Projectiles intended to be fired from a toy should not have any sharp edges, sharp points, or small parts that would fit inside the choke tube described in the previous section.
- Rigid projectiles fired from a toy should not have a tip radius less than .08 inches (2 millimeters).
- Any protective tip should not become detached from the projectile when subject to standard “use and abuse” tests described in the ASTM guidelines.

Example of a Dangerous Projectile

Category: Projectiles
Toy Name: Arrow Rifle (spelled Riele on packaging)
Manufacturer: Shuang Huan
Item Number: 399
Problem: Suction cups of arrows pop off easily, revealing sharp points. Gun can shoot the projectiles with some force.

- Strangulation Hazards -

Standards

- Cords and elastics included with or attached to toys intended for children younger than 18 months (excluding pull toys) should be less than 12 inches long. If the cords/elastics can tangle or form a loop, or both, in connection with any part of the toy, including beads or other attachments on the ends of cords/elastics, the perimeter of the loop should be less than 14 inches.
- For pull toys intended for children under 36 months of age, cords and elastics over 12 inches long should not have beads or other attachments that could tangle to form a loop.

Example of a Strangulation Hazard

Category: Strangulation
Toy Name: Water Yo-Yo Ball
Manufacturer: Assorted

Problem: The stretchy cord of the toy can wrap around a child's neck when the child swings the toy overhead like a lasso.

- Recalled Products on Store Shelves -

Some stores, particularly dollar stores, fail to remove recalled items from store shelves. This is one example of a recalled children's product that we found for sale at a dollar store in the Washington, DC area.

Category: Recalled products on store shelves
Toy Name: Baby 2 Pack Pacifiers
Manufacturer: Kole Imports (KI), Importer/Distributor
Item Number: BI194
Problem: The pacifier's nipple can easily detach from the guard, posing a serious choking hazard to young children. CPSC recalled these pacifiers in May 2006,^c but we found them at least one dollar store in October 2006.

^c CPSC, "Baby 2 Pack' Pacifiers Recalled for Choking Hazard," press release, May 25, 2006.
